

Interagency Council on Statistical Policy

The Interagency Council on Statistical Policy (ICSP) Mentoring Program helps ICSP member agencies share their expertise and skills. The main goals of the program are to help the participants grow in their careers and to build connections between ICSP member agencies, units, and programs.

2025 Cohort at a Glance

Program Objectives

- Career Growth
- Interagency Connection
- Virtual & In-Person Networking Events

Impact & Reach

- 14 Agencies (8 + Annually)
- 22 Mentor & Mentee Pairs
- 15 Engaging Events

Key Events

- Blazing into the Future Panel
- Agency Field Visit
- Innovation Lightning Round on Novel Projects/Programs

2025 Cohort Participants Voices

"My knowledge of [the Federal Statistical System] FSS has been greatly broadened and my potential career field expanded."

"My relationship with my mentor helped me become a more confident team member. It was also interesting to learn about the processes at other federal stat agencies."

"The mentorship was highly relevant to my current work and career goals, as it addressed real-world challenges and equipped me with strategies to approach them effectively."

"It has deepened my understanding of the area of my work and given me insight into how the federal statistical system works."

"I'm a returning mentor and that should signal how much I believe in its transformative power. This is an opportunity to connect and grow your network while building the next generation of leaders."

"It was a heartfelt engaging program I was fortunate to participate in, and shepherd my mentee through several transitions and further resilience, work-life balance and work satisfaction."

Ready to Grow Your Career and Network?

Each participating agency selects employees to serve as mentees (target GS12-13) or mentors (target GS14-15). The program is virtual and open to Federal employees whose work involves data and statistics, such as statisticians, economists, demographers, and data scientists. For information, please reach to your agency contact or to:

Interagency Council Statistical Policy

icspsupport@gsa.gov